TSU Jazz ensemble, choir and journalism students shine at Monterey Jazz Festival

Alaska Airlines adds to partnership's fourth year, giving students the experience of a lifetime

More than 20 students from the Texas Southern University Jazz Ensemble, University Choir and Journalism department traveled to Monterey, CA, this past week to perform and gain valuable work experience as part of the 65th annual Monterey Jazz Festival (MJF). They participated in a groundbreaking partnership, now in its fourth year, between TSU and MJF.

Unique to this year, Alaska Airlines joined the partnership by providing complimentary air and ground transportation for the students to attend the three-day festival (Sept. 23-25).

“The partnership between TSU and the Monterey Jazz Festival has been invaluable for our students and faculty,” said Melinda Spaulding, TSU vice president for advancement and communications. “We are excited that Alaska Airlines recognizes the value of our TSU students and the transformative difference this partnership will make in their lives. They are providing a stage for their futures, whether they are performing with their voice, instrument, or journalistic creativity.”

While the Jazz Ensemble has performed previously at Monterey, this was the University Choir’s first time to attend and perform at the festival.

“I am so excited for the opportunity to have my students be exposed to a variety of artists that they’ve never been around,” said TSU choir professor Dr. Kiana Williams. “Beyond the performances, this was a wonderful opportunity for them to ask questions of the different artists and corporate entities that were present, and it’s an opportunity for them to see something outside of Texas. For some of our students, that was a first.”

The Jazz Ensemble and University Choir did not only perform at the festival, but they participated in a separate concert at California State University - Monterey Bay (photo above), attended a resume and career-building workshop sponsored by Google, and performed at a private event at the Pebble Beach Golf Links. Meanwhile, the TSU journalism students, who worked as reporters and producers for KTSU2, the University’s student-run radio station, gained incredible work experience as they conducted multimedia storytelling about the festival and their experiences.

On its way to the festival, the University Choir did a pop-up performance of "This is Me" during a layover at the Seattle airport. View the video below:

The videos below were just some of what was created by the TSU Journalism team of storytellers for KTSU2 during the festival:

Homecoming theme announced It's "Destination Tiger Nation" October 22-29

Texas Southern University will host a full week of Homecoming 2022 activities beginning October 22.

This year's annual Homecoming festivities, with the theme "Destination Tiger Nation," will kick off with a Student/Alumni Get Healthy Exercise event. Other highlights of the week's events include the second annual midnight breakfast, a pep rally, Homecoming concerts, a step show, the 20th Annual Tiger Paw Scholarship Golf Classic, and the inaugural Alumni Under 40 Brunch honoring Tigers who have made a significant impact on their communities and the TSU community since graduating.

Arlington Showdown yields more than a Tiger win

While the Tiger football team delivered an impressive 24-0 shutout over rival Southern University in the annual Arlington HBCU Showdown, TSU achieved some additional successes, including a significant turnout of Tiger fans from across the Dallas/Ft. Worth metroplex and beyond. During halftime of the game, TSU also announced a $1 million scholarship commitment to students in the DFW region who attend TSU.

Prior to the game, several alumni events were held, including a mixer at the TSU headquarters hotel on Friday evening, and a Tiger Nation tailgating event in the Globe Life Field parking lot across from the game's venue at Choctaw Stadium.

Career Fair brings record number of employers seeking to hire Tigers

The Texas Southern University Fall Career Fair was held Thursday, September 22, in the Campus Recreation Center. More than 170 employers were on hand to speak with students and alumni about career opportunities, many offering interviews on the spot. Those employers included Fortune500 companies, law enforcement agencies, government agencies, school districts, non-profits, and many more.

“That so many companies traveled from near and far to be on the campus of Texas Southern University recruiting our students from all majors to fill in-demand jobs is a testament to the quality of our students and our academic programs,” said LaRence Snowden, assistant vice president for corporate community partnerships. “We look forward to the employment and internship opportunities with which our students will engage as a result of this outstanding career fair.”

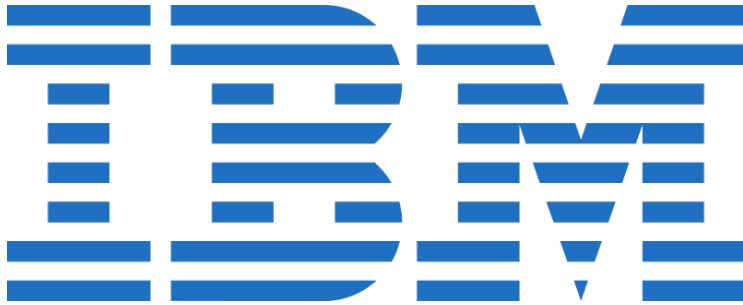

Close to 1,000 students took advantage of the chance to have face time with recruiters in attendance.

TSU selected for IBM cybersecurity initiative

During last week's National HBCU Week Conference convened by the U.S. Department of Education and the White House, IBM announced its collaboration with Texas Southern University and 19 other HBCUs to help them establish Cybersecurity Leadership Centers.

With 500,000 unfilled cybersecurity jobs in the U.S., the need for expertise is critical: According to a recent IBM Security study, insufficiently staffed organizations average $550,000 more in breach costs than those that state they are sufficiently staffed.

"Collaborations between academia and the private sector can help students prepare for success. That's especially true for HBCUs because their mission is so vital," said Justina Nixon-Saintil, Vice President, IBM Corporate Social Responsibility and ESG. "The Cybersecurity Leadership Centers we're co-creating with Historically Black College and Universities epitomize our commitment to the Black community and STEM education; it also builds on our pledge to train 150,000 people in cybersecurity over three years."

IBM will collaborate with HBCUs across 11 states (TSU is the only Texas HBCU selected) to co-create Cybersecurity Leadership Centers, helping to create talent for employers and opportunities for students.

TSU history professor to speak at annual Frederick Douglass Lecture Series

Professor of History, Dr. Karen Kossie-Chernyshev, will be the featured speaker for this semester's Frederick Douglass Lecture Series, presented by the Thomas F. Freeman Honors College.

Kossie-Chernyshev will speak on "Critical Race Theory: A Historian's Response." The lecture takes place Wednesday, September 28, at 6 p.m. in the Walter McCoy Auditorium (PAB, Room 114) in the Public Affairs Building.

TSU Regent presents at United Nations "Diaspora for Development" event

TSU Regent Ron Price, of Dallas, presented this week at the "Diaspora for Development: Leveraging Africa's Sixth Region to Realize the Continent's Promise," hosted by the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP), the African Union, and the Office of HBCU Development.

Price's presentation was part of a panel discussion called "Academic Perspectives," in conjunction with Dr. Fikru Boghossian of Morgan State University and Dr. Lamin Drammeh with South Carolina State University (pictured above with Regent Price, second from right, and Gary Bledsoe, far left, former dean of TSU's Thurgood Marshall School of Law and current board member of the Office of HBCU Development.

The panel focused on the International Distance Learning Initiative (IDLI). The goal of IDLI, which includes TSU and several other HBCUs, is to ensure inclusive and quality education for all and promote lifelong learning, and strengthen academic and sociocultural goals among universities across the African continent and beyond to advance educational outcomes for all persons of African descent. Through IDLI, distance learning courses taught by professors at HBCUs are accessible by universities across Africa.

The panel, which was available both in person (at The Permanent Observer Mission of the African Union to the United Nations in New York City, NY) and virtually, addressed questions such as:

- What are some positive lessons learned from the IDLI initiative in the past three years?
- How can the IDLI be improved for the future?
- Is it possible to scale it up (with more HBCUs and students) and if so, how?
- How can HBCUs and UNDP broaden their collaboration on educational support to Africa?

Social media phenom, Mr. Steal Your Grandma, is TSU graduate

Houston ISD school teacher by day, and social media icon at other times, Irvin Randle has created a legacy both inside the classroom and on Instagram.

Randle, who graduated from TSU in 1988 with a bachelor's degree in Communications, was recently featured in Texas Monthly for going viral as "Mr. Steal Your Grandma," a 50-something influencer that has also formed a group of similar-minded, middle-aged men known as the "Silver Fox Squad."

Randle grew up in the Third Ward in the 1970s and 80s before enrolling at Prairie View A&M and subsequently transferring to TSU.

Eventually, Randle became an elementary school teacher in HISD, a job he still proudly holds while juggling his social media career. He has amassed more than 650,000 followers on his Instagram page.

Soccer, volleyball enter SWAC play

TSU's volleyball team enters SWAC play following a tough non-conference slate. The Tigers will face PVAMU on the road on Thursday, September 29, at 6 p.m., followed by additional road contests at Arkansas-Pine Bluff and Grambling State the following week.

For more detail, visit the volleyball team website.

Meanwhile, the soccer team earned a hard-fought 3-1 road victory against Alabama A&M on Sunday.

"This was a great Sunday win for us. It's hard to win on Sundays but I think we took advantage of being home and we kept the energy up the entire game," said head coach Lindsay Vera.

Junior Victoria Pucci posted her second goal of the season in the 16th minute of the first half and was assisted by senior Ayana Noel pushing the Tigers to an early 1-0 lead. There was a shot attempt and corner kick by sophomore Kaila Smith followed by a header by junior JJ Binder before the Tigers' second goal was posted in the 26th minute of the match.

The Tigers are back on the road later this week as they continue conference play against Grambling State and Arkansas-Pine Bluff. Kickoff for Friday's match against Grambling State is 5 p.m. in Grambling, LA.

AN IDYLL OF THE SOUTH: ART AS A BAROMETER OF CULTURAL DYNAMICS

This lecture will examine the critical contributions of Black artists of the South to the cultural dialog which continues in the diverse community that is America. Ranging from the works of artists whose names are largely unknown from the period of slavery in the America to Harlem Renaissance artists such as Aaron Douglas and Charles Alston, to Civil Rights activist artists such as Murray DePillars and Elizabeth Catlett, to contemporary artists such as Kara Walker, Howard en a Pindell, Mel Edwards, and Chakia Booker, the development of the "visual voice" of African American artists who interpret and project the Southern experience through a decidedly Afrocentric perspective will be the focus of the presentation. In addition to examining individual artists, the contributions of southern community institutions and HBCUs will be examined to clearly define their roles in creating cultural art spaces for African American artists. Finally, a brief selection of exhibitions developed by African American curators, will complete the discussion by indicating how the ideas, creative impulses, and collaborative expressions of Black artists flow fully into the 21st century.

TSU Summer Scholar Academy participants with President, Dr. Lesia Crumpton-Young.

Texas Southern University hosted the Summer Scholars Academy, July 1-August 1, 2022 housed in the Department of Biology, College of Science, Engineering and Technology (COSET). The academy was devoted to changing the lives of future leaders of tomorrow. Scholars were exposed to a dynamic curriculum in mathematics, science, coding, and forensics to expand their daily horizons. As an outreach program richly rooted in the heart of Third-Ward, Houston, Texas, educators and students spent their summer learning and creating tools to help them be more successful for the upcoming school year. Our goal at TSU is to provide an experience for students to be a part of the higher education spectrum with professors and community leaders to guide them. Our one-month program each year reaches over 150 students. This free community-based program works with surrounding organizations such as Houston Food Bank, HISD and Fort Bend ISD to provide high quality enrichment through instruction and nutrition.

SYMPTOMS OF MONKEYPOX

- FEVER
- HEADACHE
- MUSCLE ACHES AND BACK ACHES
- SWOLLEN LYMPH NODES
- CHILLS
- EXHAUSTION
- RESPIRATORY SYMPTOMS (e.g., sore throat, nasal congestion, cough).
- RASH (may be located on or near the genitals, anus, but could also be on hands, feet, chest, face or mouth).
 - The rash will go through several stages, including scabs, before healing.
 - The rash can look like pimples or blisters and may be painful or itchy.

CDC.gov

For more information please contact tsu.edu/coronavirus

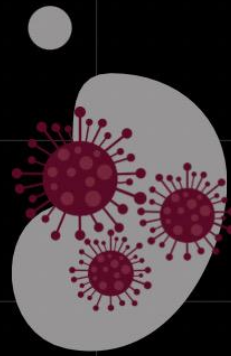

WHAT YOU NEED TO KNOW MONKEYPOX

- Monkeypox is a rare disease caused by infection with the monkeypox virus and is part of the same family of viruses as smallpox.
- The symptoms are milder but like smallpox symptoms.
- Monkeypox spreads primarily through close contact and exposure to an infected individual's respiratory droplets, lesions, or bodily fluids.
- Because Monkeypox and smallpox are closely related, if you have been vaccinated against smallpox you may have some immunity against Monkeypox.
- CDC has issued guidance on safer sex, social gatherings, and ways to lower the chances of exposure.

For more information please contact tsu.edu/coronavirus

WHAT YOU NEED TO KNOW MONKEYPOX

- Men who have sex with men (MSM) are of no greater risk of contracting the disease than other groups and it is not limited to MSM, rather it was first introduced into that community, so that's who is seeing it first and experiencing the most current cases.
- This is a stark reminder that infectious diseases are not local problems. Our world is interconnected and anything that can be spread among humans/animals can be transmitted anywhere in the world.
- There is a presented opportunity for universities to promote social distancing but also take advantage of increased sex education as co-infections with other infectious agents such as chlamydia and gonorrhea can occur which can make clinical diagnosis difficult.
